

Britney Strips - Again...

Brit's Striptease...

Britney and some of her girlfriends attended 40 Deuce, a burlesque club in Los Angeles, on Sunday night where Britney began to perform a striptease for the audience. Brit continued to jump onstage in between striptease acts until eventually the manager asked her to remove herself from the stage. It wasn't long before Brit jumped back on stage for another round of striptease. The mother of two began unzipping her top, revealing her bra and dancing provocatively with a super short skirt. After the manager escorted her offstage for the second time, Brit cooled herself down at the bar with a glass of champagne and coca-cola.

Booed by Fans...

As if things couldn't get any worse, Britney can't even attend a basketball game without being booed by the crowd. As Spears and little sister Jamie-lynn took their seats at the LA Lakers game on Sunday night, fans started booing the pop princess. Brit left at halftime, after being made fun of when her face appeared on the jumbo screen.

Do you think Britney is out of control?

See more in the Britney Spears Gallery aka Hall Of Shame

{moscomment}

Does she really deserve all the negative media attention she's been getting lately or is she simply living the life of many 25 year olds in America?